“The Sub-committee is committed to working collaboratively and collectively to establish a national repository of all course offerings in a variety delivery models. Access to this information will provide Police agencies and Training Academies the ability to access subject matter experts, as well as providing a medium for information exchange that will facilitate the establishment of a community of practice that minimizes redundancy, promotes collaboration, and extends current best practices in policing education locally, provincially and nationally.”

Dr. Gloria Laycock (UK)

“Some of the other important factors raised by Dr. Laycock included the need for a close link between research and police training and the creation of a body of knowledge that police services can draw upon to develop and drive training. Dr. Laycock also stressed that the creation of a network and being able to develop evidence-based research on a national level will require the establishment of a long-term funding plan.”
